P R E F A C E .

ALL who have attempted to solve those double Acrostics which are now so much in fashion know, to their cost, that much time and trouble must be expended in a search for words to which the initial and final letters are often a chief part of the clue. Much personal experience of this sort has led me to believe that an Acrostic Dictionary, in which the first and last letters of all words are arranged in Alphabetical order, will be a welcome and valuable addition to the solver's library.

Acting upon this belief, I have gathered from authentic sources all such words as seem suited for Acrostic purposes, and have so arranged them that the eye can easily run down the lists of those which begin and end with any two letters.

A composer has thus a full choice of such words as he may require, and a solver can rapidly select those which seem likely to answer the conditions of a "light."

Inflections have been omitted in most instances, although some few, such as participles which are used as adjectives, have been retained. Compound words in common use are given, and some foreign words which have been incorporated with our language are included in the list, as well as words lately coined, which are well suited for Acrostic purposes from the fact that they are not found in modern dictionaries.

The task of compilation has been necessarily long and tedious, but the result will doubtless be of considerable benefit to all who take pleasure in these verbal puzzles, which not only afford amusement combined with mental exercise, but also are an indirect means of acquiring much information of very varied character.

If this effort meets with success I shall be encouraged to prepare further lists of people and places, constructed upon a similar plan.

PHILLIPPA M. PEARSON.
